Kindergarten Progress

In 10 years kindergartens in the United States have grown from 3244 kindergartens with 205,000 children to 7557 kindergartens enrolling 364,189 children, according to a bulletin issued by the United States Bureau of Education. 1t

Notwithstanding this encouraging increase in schools and pupils, the great majority of children are still without the advantages of kindergarten training. Only 9 per cent of the children of kindergarten age—4 to 6—were in kindergartens. 1t

"Much constructive work must be done," declares Miss Myra Winchester, of the kindergarten division of the bureau, reviewing the figures. "The child of kindergarten age is so young, so impressionable, so incapable of defending himself against the faulty words and actions and mental attitudes of the teacher, that means must be devised to eliminate or at least diminish the number of faulty teachers. Standards of requirements as to personality and academic and professional training must be raised and maintained, for the surest guarantee of the extension of kindergartens is good work done by good teachers." 1t

Miss Winchester traces the path of progress in kindergartens from private philanthropy to public support. "First there were private kindergartens, regarded as more or less of a luxury for the well-to-do. Next, good men and women began to provide 'charity' kindergartens for the poor and neglected children; churches, settlements, kindergarten associations and mill owners gave and continue to give glad and generous support to such kindergartens. Then as a direct outgrowth of the work of the kindergarten associations, there have evolved training schools for kindergarten teachers; the State legislature has been induced to pass a bill making it legal to institute public-school kindergartens; local boards of education have partially, then entirely, taken over the care and education of little children, and finally State and city normal schools have incorporated the kindergarten training schools, making them into a regularly integrated department." 1t

The bureau's bulletin on kindergartens throughout the United States, so far as these were reported, together with opinions of superintendents, supervisors and teachers as to the results of kindergarten training in their communities. The bulletin is illustrated with photographs of real kindergarten children in real kindergarten activities. 1t

A direct wire was installed on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition on June 11 and on this came the message from Governor Cox of Ohio ordering ground to be broken for the Ohio building. When this telegram was received by Ohio Commissioner Torpy he turned the first ground for the building. This was followed by a special program. The structure will be a reproduction of the Ohio state house at Columbus. 1t

Norwegians living in San Francisco have cabled Exposition Commissioner Hansen, now in Norway, that if the Norwegian government will grant official recognition to the Panama-Pacific International exposition the Norwegians in the United States will erect the Norwegian pavilion so that their country will not be left out of the list of participating nations. 1t
